E. L. DOHENY BARES OIL LEASE SECRET

SOUGHT TO AVERT WAR ON ADVICE OF REAR ADMIRAL

Claims Oriental Invasion Was Imminent and Safety of Fleet Depended on Good Petroleum Reserve— Says Attorney General Daugherty Approved Transfer of Authority to Fall.

An assertion that the Washington limitation of arms conference in 1921 was called to prevent hostilities in the Pacific which had badly frightened naval officers was made today in an interview with E. L. Doheny, wealthy oil man, published in and copyrighted by the New York Times.

The interview was presented as Doheny's story of the events leading up to the Elk Hills California naval oil reserve. The leasing resulted in a senatorial investigation, Doheny's indictment with former Secretary Albert B. Fall for alleged criminal conspiracy and litigation under which the lease has been declared invalid.

Doheny was quoted by the Times as saying the work done under the lease was surrounded with secrecy to prevent foreign delegations to the conference learning that even at the moment the United States was engaged in warlike proportions.

The Times states that on advice of counsel, Doheny refrained from discussing the $100,000 loan to Fall which figured so prominently in the oil investigations or the letter signed by Fall saying he received the money from E. B. McLean of Washington. The Times said, however, it learned on good authority that Doheny understands the letter was signed under pressure from a Republican politician.

Doheny is quoted as setting forth five main points which led to his leasing of the Elk Hills reserves and which have bearing on subsequent happenings.

These are:
That Admiral John K. Robison, chief of the naval engineers' bureau, convinced him that "a great war in the Pacific threatened in 1921."

That the plans for leasing the navy oil reserves originated "in the brains of high officers of the navy who, as a result of confidential reports submitted by Admiral Albert Gleaves commanding in 1921 the American naval forces in Asiatic waters, were convinced that a great war in the Pacific threatened."

That Secretary of the Navy Edwin Denby, and not Secretary of the Interior Fall suggested the transfer of authority over the navy oil reserves from the navy to the interior department and that the transfer was discussed at a full cabinet meeting, at which Calvin Coolidge, then vice president, was among those in attendance.

That Doheny himself acted only after Admiral Robison told him that an invasion of the Pacific coast of the United States was probable unless oil storage facilities at Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, were constructed without delay.

That the leases and the carrying out of the program covered by the leases was surrounded in great secrecy because the Arms Limitation conference was in progress at Washington and it was vital that the powers represented there should not learn that while the United States was working for peace it was preparing for war.

That "certain independent telegrams" which would "go a long way towards clearing up the situation" are missing from the files of the interior department.

PIKE COUNTY IN CENTER OF STAGE AGAIN

Federal Grand Jury May be Called to Consider Election Funds.

Waverly, O., July 2 (UP).—The lid is about to be blown off another election fraud scandal in Pike county.

Four federal inspectors just completed a thoro investigation in the county and are now preparing their reports for submission to Haveth E. Mau, United States district attorney.

The fraud charges, most of them brought by Republicans against their Democratic opponents, involve in the main alleged vote buying.

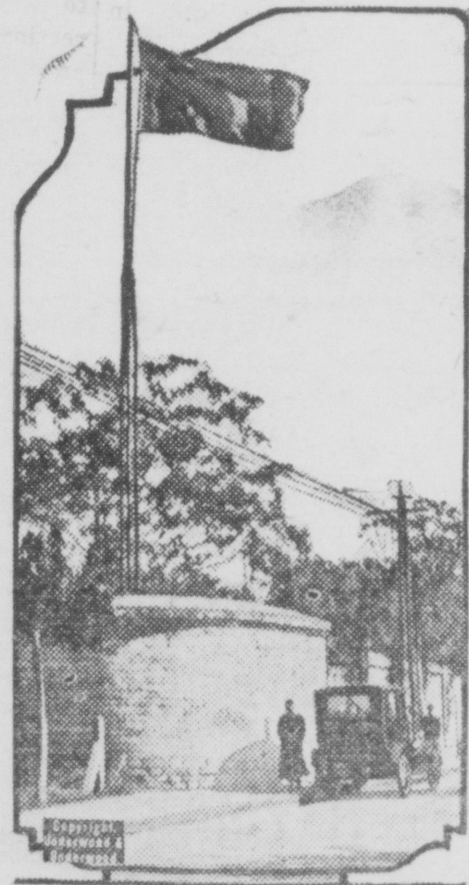

The investigation by federal agents included the elections of 1922 and 1924.

A federal grand jury may be called to consider the reports of the inspectors.

Died at Home in Ashville—
Funeral Services to be

Jacob Sylvanus Smith, aged 77 years, one of Ashville's earliest settlers, suddenly expired at the home of his son, Stanley L. Smith in Ashville at 2 o'clock, Wednesday morning, July 1, of a hemorrhage of the lungs.

Deceased had been in declining health for several years, due to heart and lung trouble complicated with rheumatism, though at most times he was able to be about by use of crutches and was about town on Monday but after a slight hemorrhage Tuesday morning he had remained in the home.

The attack Wednesday morning came when asleep and he was barely able to make his condition known and expired before the physician arrived. He is survived by two daughters, Mrs. J. M. Hartman and Mrs. H. R. Wooten, both of Columbus, and son, Stanley L. Smith, of Ashville.

HOME COMING AT ROBTOWN DELIGHTFUL

Main Address Was Made by Boyd Rife, a Student at Otterbein.

The Robtown United Brethren church Homecoming on Sunday, June 28th, with its basket dinner accomplished the desire for a social day by those who promoted the occasion.

The attendance of members, former members and friends from the vicinity and a distance was gratifying and resulted in a real Homecoming of friends as well as members of the church.

The picnic basket dinner in the Big Old Elm in the church yard provided nourishment and a social season for several hours following the morning program which made all feel that it was well to be mingled with those assembled.

The main address of the afternoon was delivered by student Boyd Rife, of Otterbein university at Westerville. Mr. Rife is a product of Walnut township, son of Marcus J. Rife, of Ashville, and his leading place on the afternoon program added a local interest to all present. Mr. Rife acquitted himself well and his address was well received.

Mr. Henry Canter and Rev. D. S. Mills, both of Ashville, were heard in interesting but short addresses. Much more of commendation could be added in justice to the success of the day of homecoming.

Rev. Gibson, the local pastor, was in charge of the program and lent his enthusiasm to its success.

FLOWERS FOR THE LIVING

Most Americans take their hats off to the man who by his own efforts rises from the ranks and takes his place in the spotlight. Cheering the lowly private who makes the grade of Captain is a part of the true spirit of this land of opportunity. There have been a million such examples in America since Washington's day. We refer to Harold B. Stephens, saxophonist in the Long Beach Municipal Band. "Steve" as he is affectionately known to thousands of people in Southern California, has been engaged as soloist with Sousa's band. He is an example of rising from the ranks, worth emulating by all young musicians and we predict for him a glorious success.—Los Angeles (Calif.) Overature.

DOG STARDOM "GUARDSMAN" IS IN MOVIES

Dayton, O., July 1 (UP).—"Guardsman," Kenneth Estabrook's German police dog, soon will challenge the claims of "Strongheart" and "Balto" to the throne of dog stardom in the movies.

"Guardsman" in going into the movies signed to a liberal contract won thru merit alone. His record includes capturing a runaway convict near an Alabama prison camp and saving several persons, including his master, from drowning.

Otherwise, "Guardsman" is a regular canine—takes great delight in ruining flower beds and hates cats.

BOOTLEGGERS SENTENCED TO SERVE TIME

Michael De Angelo gets Three Years and Twelve-thousand Dollars Fine.

Michael De Angelo, Columbus commission merchant, who was recently indicted with eight other men on five counts, charged with conspiracy to violate the federal prohibition laws, was sentenced to serve three years and a day in the federal prison at Leavenworth, Kas., and was fined a total of $12,000, by United States Judge Benson W. Hough.

The men jointly indicted and convicted with De Angelo, and their sentences, are: Tony Consentino, two years; Joe Albanese, two years; John Calusi, two years; James Broski, 18 months; Charles Lombardo, 11 months; John Posterio, eight months; Tony Dato, eight months; Joe Ross, eight months.

At the opening of the session, District Attorney Haveth Mau stated that the government had no further remarks to make on the case. Attorneys for the defendants, made pleas for leniency. When asked whether he had anything to say before sentence was imposed, De Angelo stated that he had received fair treatment at the hands of the court, but that he had been double-crossed during the trial by federal officers prosecuting the case. He threw himself on the mercy of the court.

"This is just the beginning of a drive that we are making to clean up Columbus and vicinity of bootleggers," declared District Attorney Mau. "The government has evidence that other bootlegging 'rings' are in operation here, and we mean to put them out of business."

Thelma De Angelo, recently indicted on two counts for the illegal purchase of narcotics, was sentenced to 20 months in the House of Correction, Milwaukee, Wis. She had entered a plea of not guilty, but changed her plea.

Before Mrs. De Angelo was sentenced, Dana Reynolds, attorney for the defense, made a statement in her behalf, urging the judge to send her to an institution where she could be cured of the drug habit.

GOVERNMENT RECOVERED MUCH MONEY

Deputy collectors of internal revenue throughout the country completed 326 investigations in May, the internal revenue commission disclosed today, and the government recovered $4,345,273 as a result of their work.

The investigators levied additional taxes of $5,390,770 and took appropriate steps to protect the government's interest in each amount not immediately collected.

They reported finding 28,236 firms and individuals who never had filed returns, although they were alleged to owe taxes.

A System of Farming That Brings Health and Prosperity

Every farm, regardless of the method of farming practiced or of the crops raised, should have at least a few good milch cows to provide

- (1) Enough milk, cream and butter for home use;
- (2) Enough skim-milk to raise some calves, pigs and chickens;
- (3) Enough cream or butter to sell to pay, in part or entirely, current living expenses.

This plan has been a "life-saver" for thousands of farmers, especially during the hard times of the past two years. It insures a living, at least, and often other income besides.

Such a plan pays best with a De Laval Cream Separator. It soon pays for itself—and skims cleaner, lasts longer and is easier to operate and clean than any other.

KEEP RIGID WATCH FOR AUTO THIEVES

Auto owner, did you know that 10,064 automobiles were reported stolen in 1924? This report is authentic, and shows that a more rigid watch should be made for the thieves.
One method of the crooks is to carry their own battery, in case your switch is locked.

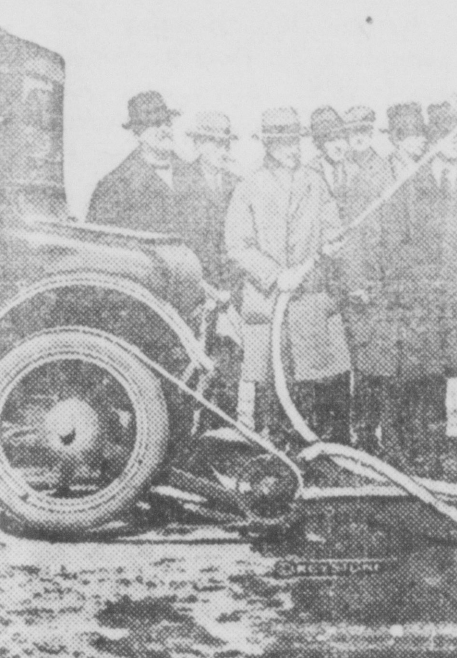

WEAR CAUSED BY SEVERE BRAKING
Tests Show Tires, Wheels, Spokes, Gears and Joints Are Affected.

Tires, wheels, spokes, differential gears and universal joints; these are the parts of an automobile which suffer most from sudden and severe brake applications, according to tests just completed.
These tests revealed why it is possible for a car to skid on a perfectly dry pavement. It was found that locked wheels slide along asphalt on a film of soft rubber, melted from the tread of the tire by frictional heat. In such cases, it was found, the car will travel farther before stopping than when the brakes are so adjusted and applied by the operator that they cannot lock the wheels.
Inspect Brakes Often.
In the interest of greater safety, car owners should see to it that their brakes are more frequently inspected; certainly no less than once a month, or, better, every 500 miles. A simple road test, moreover, can be made by determining within what distance a car can be stopped at various speeds. When this has been determined, with any particular car, a liberal margin of safety should be added for actual conditions of service.
It should be remembered that the ability to stop a car is greatly influenced by the condition of the road surface. When roads are very wet, as in heavy rainstorms, there is less tendency for a car to skid than when the roads are partially dried or in what is known as a "greasy state." Should a car start to skid when applying the brakes, it is usually due to the wheels locking.
Stop Skidding.
A dangerous skidding can usually be quickly stopped if a driver has presence of mind to release the brakes and apply them a second time with less force. This gives the wheels a chance to again grip the road. If the road is very slippery, as on an icy road with light snow on the surface, best results are obtained by slowing the car carefully with the engine and helping with the brake. Lightly loaded cars, as with the driver only, are more difficult to stop than loaded ones.
With these points in mind a driver can quickly learn the "tricks," but, above all, do not have too much confidence in your ability, as "it is better to be safe than sorry."

Watch Universal Joints
Universal joints, due to their location under the floor of the car, are usually neglected and the owner seldom gives them any attention until they begin to give trouble. These units of the car should not be overlooked. If the joints are of fabric type, see that every bolt is tight, and cotter pins are in place and that the fabric is not worn at any point. If mechanical joints are used, lubricate them thoroughly, and if there is any extra "play" in the joint, drive it to a service station immediately.

PUMP FOR FIRE USE ATTACHED TO WHEEL

fire protection, but also can be used for draining wet land, flooded cellars, pile driving, cleaning out stuffed up water lines, etc. It has a lifting capacity of 24 feet through the 1½ inch suction hose.

Care for Spring Clips Is of Much Importance
A point not always observed by the new car owner is that it is necessary to tighten the clips which hold the springs to their seats from time to time. Though the clips are tightened firmly when a new car leaves the factory the continual working up and down of the spring leaves will cause them to set gradually, thereby somewhat loosening the spring clips. These clips should be drawn up perfectly tight every once in awhile.
It is a common error to suppose that when a spring breaks upon a car plunging into a deep hole, the breakage is caused by the shock of the weight of the car coming down on the wheels. As a matter of fact, when a spring gives way under these circumstances, the breakage is usually caused not on the downward movement of the spring, but on the rebound. When the load plunges down, the load is borne by all leaves simultaneously, whereas the force of the rebound is taken by the leaves individually, one after the other, and for that reason must become more emphasized when the spring clips are loosened. Spring breakage occurs more often with loose clips than with properly tightened ones.
After the car has been run for a while and the springs have assumed their permanent set, the spring clips will need tightening only at very long intervals.

Difficult to Estimate Correct Speed of Cars
From the results of experiments conducted by the psychological department of an Iowa university it appears that the average person is prone to overestimate the speed of a small, noisy motor car and underestimate that of a large, smooth-running one, says Popular Mechanics Magazine.
About 100 students were recently assembled at a point past which machines of different sizes and conditions were driven at known speeds. As a vehicle passed, each person recorded on paper his personal estimate of its mileage per hour.
Twenty-three trips were made with the cars, and from a study of the subsequent tabulations it was found that when a driver continually sounded his horn in passing the students considered the speed to be about five miles an hour greater than it really was. The discrepancy was double this when the rate of a rattling machine was considered.
Of two cars traveling at equal paces, the smaller was invariably estimated to travel faster than the other.
It is rather interesting, too, that young men and women who had never driven a car, made, on the whole, as nearly accurate estimates as did those of greater experience.
Close guesses of actual speeds were made when cars jaunted along at ten or twelve miles an hour, but when raced at 50 or 60 miles the guesses were extremely wild.

Made Many Wealthy, and Died in Poverty
It was in 1843 that Charles Goodyear, Yankee inventor, accidentally discovered the secret of vulcanization. The accident consisted of dropping a mixture of rubber and sulphur on a hot stove in his home. Today, says the India Rubber Review, vulcanized rubber literally holds up the stockings and trousers of the world. More than 15,000,000 motorists ride on it. More than 50,000,000 persons walk on it daily. Infants cut their teeth on it and old age uses it for false teeth. Balloons and dirigibles of rubber float aloft, while submarines plow beneath the ocean surfaces propelled by electricity stored in rubber cells. Yet Charles Goodyear was pauperized by expensive lawsuits instituted to protect his 60 different patents which were awarded him after years of struggle, and he was deprived of the fruits of his discovery through a technical irregularity in the registration in France and England of his patents. He spent his last days in humble circumstances.

The time is passed when the measure of the value of a memorial is quantity. I hope the time has come when that measure is quality. I care not whether the material be marble or granite, its future will be measured by the character of the design. It is quality that has preserved for us the finest examples in painting and sculpture. It is quality that will stamp our imprint upon cemeteries of the future. Simplicity, correct lines and proportions and proper ornamentation are the real fundamentals. A design that is right, material that is lasting, and perfect workmanship, spells success for the future of this industry and the beautification of the cemetery. Will you let me help you select the memorial for your lot. Call at show room. NO AGENTS.

THE OLD-TIME WORLD.

When it's summer in the country and the birds are singing free; When the meadows burn with blossoms and the fruit is on the tree; When the mocking birds are singing and the bumblebees are gay, There is something that makes life different in the simple old-time way:

In the old-time way of boyhood, when the branch ran sweet and cool And the sunfish and the mullets darted round and round the pool.

When the sweet magnolia's blooming and the paw-paws, fat and sleek, Begin to burn and mellow round the old bend in the creek;

When the fox grapes smell like Eden, and the willows swing so low,

There is something keeps on calling to you heart to up and go;

In the old-time world of beauty there's a charm that will not die,

When the Bob White haunts the coverts and the cloud ships sail the sky.

It's a new day and new methods in this life, we live, I know, And the moving generations echo that the old things go;

But when summer haunts the pasture and the little hills are green, There's a spirit of all living gives the land a different sheen:

That old-time sheen of beauty that's so simple and so true

In the dreams that come to my heart and the dreams that come to you.

SURGEON SAYS
CANCER CAN BE
FORESTALLEDDeadly Disease is Caused by Poisons Created in Body
by Food Eaten.

(From Dearborn Independent.)

"Cancer is the great human menace. It is increasing by leaps and bounds. If anything, it is increasing more rapidly in the United States than it is in the British Isles. Of those now living in the British Isles, 5,000,000 are doomed to die of cancer if they do nothing to prevent it. In the United States the doomed number is 10,000,000 and might easily rise to 15,000,000 or 20,000,000."

This remarkable statement is made by Sir W. Arbuthnot Lane, Bart., one of the world's most eminent surgeons and dietitians, in an article appearing in the June 20 issue of The Dearborn Independent.

According to Sir Arbuthnot, cancer is not caused by the bacillus that scientists have so long sought and not yet found, but rather by poisons created in the body by the food that is eaten. It is a filth disease, and its prevention is accomplished by keeping the digestive tract thoroughly drained of its accumulations.

Continuing the Doctor says: "What we should do then, if we would avoid cancer, is to eat whole-wheat bread and raw fruits, and vegetables, shunning all meat first that we may be better nourished, second that we may more easily eliminate waste products and thus adequately drain the house in which our cells live. Whoever foregoes white bread will perform a great service for himself. It is deadly."

It is a difficult task to change the food habits of a nation or to induce the people to take sufficient exercise each day. Sir Arbuthnot says, however, that "whoever will correct his diet to a reasonable extent, take reasonable exercise and keep his digestive tract absolutely clean, need have no fear of cancer."

LORAIN PORT
OF MISSING
AUTOMOBILESMeter Filled Quarry Gave
Evidence of a Woman
Murder Mystery.

Lorain, July 1.—(UP.)—The "port of missing automobiles," a water filled quarry near here, today gave up evidence of a murder mystery.

A woman's garments stained with blood were removed from an automobile which divers found submerged in the pit. Similar garments were discovered in a clump of bushes near the quarry.

The possibility of finding stolen automobiles and perhaps the body of a woman murder victim prompted authorities to prepare a request to the county commissioners for a professional diver to explore the "port."

Useful to Pie Eaters

The piece of pie is recognized as the appropriate finish of an American luncheon, but for the fellow who carries his noonday meal to his job, the pie feature has been impossible to a great extent because of the inconvenience of transportation. Packed up in the usual lunch receptacle, the pie is always liable to be crushed and its juicy contents squirted out all over the other viands; but there has recently made its appearance a carrier for a piece of pie. It is a wedge-shaped receptacle shaped exactly like a piece of pie. It is made of aluminum so that there is almost no weight to it. The cut of pie is placed in it and the lid pushed down and there you are! safe and sound.

JAY WALKER
BEING MADE
RESPONSIBLE

Cities Will Insist That Pedestrians Must Come Under Traffic Regulations.

Some part of the responsibility for traffic accidents and loss of life must rest on the shoulders of the jay walker. That individual is in evidence in all cities where efforts are being made to lessen highway hazards. He pays no attention to lights, officers or regulations, insists on walking across the street at any point he may select, no matter in what direction traffic may be traveling. To an observer he appears to be hunting trouble.

Ultimately cities will insist that pedestrians as well as vehicles come under traffic regulations. In most places practically all attention of officers is given to wheel traffic, the pedestrian must work out his own problem. That custom is wrong. It helps to stimulate jay walking but does not justify it. The pedestrian should have the right of safe journey across the street at the regular places for crossing, have that in turn with vehicles, and should be expected to observe the traffic regulations exactly as drivers are expected to.

Officials at Williamsport, Pa., are trying to eliminate the jay walker, educate and instruct him and in that way decrease hazards. Each time a jay walker goes across the street in violation of traffic or at the wrong place, that individual is handed a card by a traffic officer. The message is that he has violated safety regulations and helped make the streets dangerous, to himself and others. A request is made by the police that regulations be observed. If not, the plan is to take the jay walkers into court for instruction and penalty, if they decline to learn wisdom and help promote safety.—O. S. Journal.

"Coming Through" is an adaptation by Paul Schofield, of Jack Bethea's novel, "Bed Rock," directed by Edward Sutherland.

Here's your favorite screen star in a picture that has action, thrills, love interest and humor in goodly proportions.

The story opens in the Pittsburgh offices of a large steel concern. Tom is employed in the capacity of chief clerk. His aim in life, however, is to become Superintendent of Mines and he bends every effort to prove that the position is none too big for him to handle. But he is side-tracked right and left to make way for some friend of so-and-so's.

After this has happened a couple of times, Tom decides to play their own game. He elopes with the president's daughter—rather a mean trick to put over on the poor girl, to be sure, but then love comes afterward to straighten things out.

Tom is shipped off to Colton by the irate father. Now there are many rough-and-ready mining camps in the company's holdings, but none quite as rough as Colton. Tom is given an unheard schedule of production to keep up and his father-in-law fixes things with the mine foreman so that Blackford might not "come through"—a case, as Rand thinks, of returning evil for evil.

But Tom does "come through." Try and "frame him" would they?—and he does—in the finest Meighan picture to date.

Lila Lee, in pictures for the first time in more than a year, is featured in support of the star. Wallace Beery is the villainous mine foreman. John Milten plays Rand, the steel magnate.

Laurance Wheat, Frank Campeau, Gus Weinburg and Alice Knowland complete the cast.

Damascus claims the distinction of being the oldest city in the world. It comes into religious history with the advent of Abram. APPROPRIATE EXPENSE FUND FOR THE CITY

Estimates Made for Sewers—Fines and Licenses Collected by the Mayor.

The city council met in regular session Wednesday evening, July 1, with President John C. Goeller, presiding, and the following members present: Landenberger, Leist, Marion, Shaner, Wolf and Baker.

Mr. Leist, as chairman, reported that the committee recommend that permission be granted the Enderlin Coal company to construct a switch across Mound street and on motion of Mr. Wolf, this report was accepted.

City Engineer Sweetman submitted an estimate in the sum of $4,966.80 for the construction of a storm water sewer from the intersection of Ohio and Washington streets, thence in an easterly direction on Ohio street to Clinton street; thence in a northerly direction on Clinton street to its intersection with Half Avenue, a distance of 1,300 feet, and this was referred to the committee consisting of all members of council, with Mr. Baker as chairman.

City Engineer Sweetman submitted an estimate in the sum of $4,981.05 for the construction of an extension to the Huston street storm water sewer from the intersection of Huston and Pickaway streets; thence north on Pickaway street to Ohio street; thence east on Ohio street to the center of Washington street, a distance of 1,005 feet. On motion of Mr. Marion this report was referred to the committee consisting of all members of council. Mr. Baker was appointed chairman of this committee.

Mr. Shaner reported a meeting of all members of council for the purpose of providing a better method for taking care of the city sewerage, and this question was referred to the committee on department of public service.

Health Officer Schneider reported that he had submitted a sample of the city water taken from the fountain at the court house, and also from the north and south parts of the city, to the state board of health, and that he had received a report from said board of health that the water is entirely satisfactory.

The finance committee submitted to council a schedule showing the appropriations to be made for the ensuing six months as follows:

Genl. Government Fund...$ 3,093 00
Public Safety Fund 7,520.00
Public Health Fund 390 00
Public Service Fund 13,935 00
Public Library Fund 2,360 00
with the recommendation that the same be appropriated and on motion of Mr. Leist this report was received.

An ordinance making appropriations for the current expenses and other expenditures of the City of Circleville, Ohio, during the fiscal half year ending December 31, 1925, was introduced and passed under suspension of the rules.

A resolution to provide for submitting to the voters of the city at the regular election on the third day of November, a proposition to levy an additional tax for municipal purposes at a rate not to exceed two mills on the dollar in addition to the maximum rate of taxation authorized under provisions of the general code of Ohio, and for a period not to exceed five years, was referred to the committee on law and claims, together with the city solicitor.

Mr. Baker offered a motion which was seconded that the director of public service be requested to pay the members of the estimating board and equalization board for their services rendered in connection with the improving of Franklin street and this was adopted.

Attorney C. A. Leist, representing Mr. John Myers, former chief of police, requested council to pass the necessary resolution authorizing the return to Mr. Myers the fees earned by him while chief of police in State cases. Under the direction of the bureau of public accounting at that time, these fees were paid into the city treasury and amounted to the sum of $428.45. That the attorney general of the state, has recently made a ruling that these fees so earned are the property of the chief of police, and not the city. This was referred to the committee on law and claims.

MISS DENBY

By JANE GORDON

JOEL was, considering his strange, isolated manner of living, a remarkable young man. From childhood he had known but the crude cottage, built by his father's hands, in the thick of the far wood. Perhaps if Joel's father had not died in the son's boyhood, Joel might have gone out into the world to learn its ways. He had, instead, remained to care for the invalid mother, who had withered away as a flower might wither, in the lone country to which love for her husband had brought her.

With his labor among the trees, with books sent for at his mother's direction, Joel came to know every tree and leaf and sprout, and with his idle fishing in the silvery streams and the happy home life with his frail little mother, he had become content. It was after her passing that ambition called, and the question of the far-away, busy world cried for answer. Joel, half afraid of those populated places of which he knew so little, sent for more books—of choice literature—of general information.

The tall, thin young man, with honest dark eyes and fearless bearing, could not know his own attraction; his shyness was to be expected—he met so few people. The woodland folk knew him—Joel was at home with them and with Lisbeth. Lisbeth had grown up in a cottage not far away—benefited by his mother's suggestions and advising. Joel supposed that some day he should marry Lisbeth.

Looking at the pictures in the magazines which came to him, he wondered if women might truly be so beautiful—he thought of them as the knights in the books he read might have thought.

Then to the far woodland came Eleanor Denby. She came with her father on his business trip. It was necessary that John Denby, noted engineer, should see this particular location. And as John Denby was busy driving far and wide, the independent Miss Denby was left to her own resources, in the only boarding place the settlement afforded. She kept to herself, taking long walks through the forest, carrying picnic lunches with her—and the companionship of magazines alone.

"Mighty naughty," Jim Brent, the landlady's husband, said, and in quick resentment the neglected settlement took up the name.

Joel was naturally curious about the naughty Miss Denby when he heard of her. And when he saw her—poor Joel stood so long in the path after she had passed that Miss Denby, glancing back, caught the look of awe and admiration in his fine eyes and wondered about it, as she went on her way. "Unaccustomed to city young women," she said amusedly.

Joel would not have believed in love at first sight, which, nevertheless, he was experiencing.

And the girl of whom Joel dreamed learned soon the history of his isolated existence, past and present. Learned also of his mother's brother in New York city, who had offered to the young man a college education which he had refused, to stay on with his dying mother.

As days passed and the encounters in woodland paths became frequent, leaving Joel with wildly beating heart, he was troubled with a desire which would not be denied—to meet properly and know the lovely young woman, who must always be as far beyond his reach as a distant glory-star.

Aimlessly Joel's rod hung above the waters, untouched, his study books near by. Then, down the stream a white rose came floating—a white rose—and she had worn in her belt that day such a flower. He looked up to where the log bridge forded the stream; she stood there—the naughty Miss Denby—she was watching him.

With a sudden impulse Joel caught the flower, and in true knightly fashion pressed it to his lips. Then carefully he tucked it into the billfold in his blouse pocket. Painfully conscious, Joel returned to a pretence of his task. Eleanor Denby, known to familiar friends at home as 'Nell,' thereupon accomplished a strange manner of exercise. Calmly and with a smile of amusement, she twisted her small foot about and sat down upon it. Then in clear tones she called to the young man on the lower bank:

"Please, Mr. Joel Webster, will you come and help me? I have twisted my ankle."

A knight ever hastens to a lady in distress. No knight could have been more prompt in action than was Joel. She was very light to carry; her weight did not tire him, as they continued their journey to the boarding house in the wood. And she was not naughty now—just a wounded little creature, resting gratefully in his strong grasp.

That night Joel's dreams were confused memories concerning the blue of her eyes—the perfume of her hair. And when, some time later, Joel Webster became one of John Denby's chosen engineers, and, incidentally, John Denby's son-in-law, he looked one day tenderly and wonderingly into the blue eyes which still enthralled him.

"Nell," Joel said, "little Nell, I am asking myself again the question; how came you to love me there, out in my wilderness? Of course I had to love you. Every tale of romance I had read promised your coming."

Held Dog, Saved Children

John McLaughlin, after being bitten by a dog supposedly suffering from rabies, at Marlboro, N. Y., grappled with the animal, and getting a firm hold on it held on until aid came. He said he realized the dog had done as much damage as it could, after biting him once, and he risked further lacerations in order to protect some children near by from possible rabies infection.

The Canny Scot

A real liquid refreshment had been forbidden the aged Scotchman, who felt that his end was near. He called his gude wife to the bedside and asked her would she carry out certain wishes of his when he was dead. She promised to do so, and asked what they were. "Ah, weel," said the moribund, "I thocht it would be nice if ma freen's had a drink afore the funeral." His worthy spouse agreed that it would be. "An' efter they returned," Again she agreed. "I suppose," he added, with a sly grin, "as I winna come back I might get bath mline noo." —San Francisco Argonaut.

Cannibals Still Exist

Until the recent murder of the Canadian explorer, Charles Penrose, in New Guinea by cannibals, the fact that man-eating humans still existed was not generally realized. This tragedy revealed authentic modern records of the cannibalistic tribes in the out-reaches of civilization. In New Guinea they live in the extreme interior, where the country is thickly forested and the tribes are difficult to locate. No traveler has dared to go too far into this interior, although neighboring tribes have given out information on their less sociable neighbors.

IMPROVED U. S. INTERNATIONAL Sunday School Lesson

(©, 1925, Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for July 5

THE BEGINNING OF FOREIGN MISSIONS

LESSON TEXT—Acts 13:1-12.
GOLDEN TEXT—And He said unto them, Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature.—Mark 16:15.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Two Men Become Foreign Missionaries.

JUNIOR TOPIC—How Foreign Missions Began.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—The Beginning of Foreign Missions.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Holy Spirit in Foreign Missions.

I. The Gifts of the Church at Antioch (v. 1).

Young as Antioch, the new religious center was, she had prophets and teachers. In Eph. 4:8-12 Paul declares that when Christ ascended He gave gifts to men for the purpose of perfecting the saints unto the work of the ministry. This shows that the church does not exist for itself, but for service to others. Christ, the head of the church, came not to be ministered to, but to minister and give His life a ransom for many (Matt. 20:28).

II. Barnabas and Saul Sent Forth (vv. 2-3).

These were the first foreign missionaries sent out. While the five ministers were praying and fasting, the Spirit of God commanded them to send forth Barnabas and Saul. The work of evangelizing the world was laid so heavily upon these men that they refrained from eating in order to seek the will of the Lord in prayer. This is the kind of fasting that meets God's approval. From the fact that they were directed to send forth those whom the Spirit called, we learn that the real call to Christ's service comes from the Spirit. The Spirit called and the church seconded the motion by sending those who were called by Him. The church should be constantly seeking the mind of the Spirit relative to the sending forth of laborers into the vineyard. The Spirit called and the church sent the very best men from the church at Antioch. These men seem to have been ready to go for they rendered instant obedience. This should be our attitude toward the Lord's work, holding ourselves in readiness for the immediate execution of His commission. Those who have received the Spirit's call are not taken by surprise when the church sets them forward to their specific work.

III. Preaching the Word of God in Cyprus (vv. 4-5).

We are not told as to why they first went to Cyprus, but we are left to infer that it was owing to the fact that it was the home of Barnabas. He was acquainted with the country and people, and could thus be assured of a respectable hearing among them. Besides it is most natural that those who have heard the good news to go with it first to their kindred and friends. Andrew first went to his brother, and the man out of whom the demons were cast was denied the pleasure of his request to follow Jesus. Christ commanded him to go home and tell what great things the Lord had done for him (Luke 8:39). As they went forth they carefully carried out their commission for they preached the Word of God, not current history, philosophy, ethics, etc. Those who are faithful to God will never preach anything but His Word. The great need today is Spirit-called, Spirit-filled men preaching God's Word. In fact Spirit-filled men will preach nothing else. The opposer of God and Christ can only be successfully met by this means.

IV. Withstood by Elymas, the Sorcerer (vv. 6-12).

Sergius Paulus, the deputy, invited Barnabas and Saul to tell him of the Word of God. Elymas maliciously sought to turn his mind from the faith. This is the first obstacle they encountered, but it was overcome through the power of the Spirit. This opposer is the same one who came to Adam in the garden of Eden, and Jesus in the wilderness. He is the enemy of God and man. He now sought to bar the gospel as it entered upon its career of the conversion of the heathen. Paul denounced him in the most scathing terms. He called him the child of the devil, denounced him as full of guile and villainy, pronouncing him the enemy of all righteousness, accusing him of perverting the right ways of the Lord. Surely a man is never more of a villain than when trying to turn a soul from the gospel.

Our Life

We are living now by justice, honor and mercy, by the moral mastery of ourselves and of our time; and this life while in time is not of time; it is life in God and for God; it is the life of freedom; it is free from anxiety, fear, doubt, despair, death; it is content with God and with its fate in God. —George A. Gordon.

KOSCIUSKO STATUE

This statue of Gen. Thaddeus Kosciusko, the Polish patriot who served the United States in the Revolutionary war, is located in Lafayette square, across Pennsylvania avenue from the White House.

Litigation Saved by Diversity of Opinion

When two men of high standing fall out it is usually over one of the most trivial things in life. It would not be fair, perhaps, to say that Senator Lodge and General Paine actually fell out, but they were neighbors at Nahant and General Paine wanted a right of way across Mr. Lodge's property. The question of right was rather involved, and Paine consulted a lawyer, who said, "You haven't a case."

Not satisfied, he consulted another, who gave him a similar opinion.

There the matter rested for a few days, when the general received a letter from the senator saying, "As to the right of way, I have consulted two lawyers, both of whom tell me you can probably sustain your contention in court. I suggest, therefore, that we come together and arrange for the right of way as you desire."

Beavers Increasing Fast

Possession of a new resource that within a short span of years may be expected to develop into a means of positive profit for land owners in various parts of South Dakota is seen by H. S. Hedrick, state game warden, on colonies which have been practically immune from trappers under the state law for the past six years, the St. Paul Pioneer Press says.

It is impossible to make even an approximation of the number of these fur-bearing animals, Mr. Hedrick says, but it is known that they have prospered to an unexpected degree and are beginning to invade many localities where they were never before seen.

Set for Rainy Day

Prince George, youngest surviving son of King George V, has prepared for a "rainy day," such as the ousting of the royal family. He has become a member of the famous Mercers' company, from which he can obtain practically indefinite relief in the event of "old age or misfortune." Funds for such purposes were set aside years ago by members of the guild.

"Flock of Beautiful Birds"

New York, paradoxical in this as in everything else, is at once the most hospitable of cities and one of the hardest places in the world to get to know people.

There is in the atmosphere a restlessness, a swirling vivacity, which makes the people of New York find pleasure in movement rather than in concentration. When the more stolid Britisher goes to one of these parties she is apt to feel like some one standing on the shore of a lake while a flock of beautiful birds wheel crying around her, writes Rebecca West in the New Republic.

The American women, who always look very sweet and graceful in motion, because of the slenderness of the wrists and ankles, dart up to one and deliver shrill, sharp, surprising comments, often flattering opinions of one's appearance, which are, if one is honest, much more delightful than embarrassing. If they think you have beautiful eyes, or that you dress well they say so, and they will dart away, while others dart up to take their place.

This goes on and on, hour after hour, and yet the women never get haggard with fatigue, just as the men who are with them never seem to want to stop dancing.

Was Shattered.

Hudson, O., July 2, (UP).—"Jim" Ellsworth came home today to the town where his first great dream was dashed to pieces on the rocks of a rural community's determination to remain rural.

They brought "Jim" Ellsworth home in a long wooden box and buried him beneath the tall shrubbery beside the bodies of his two wives. Ellsworth died in his villa near Florence, Italy, a month ago, releasing life gladly because he believed his son Lincoln, had died in the Arctic circle with Roald Amundson.

Last November the elder Ellsworth, a multi-millionaire, his son, Lincoln and Amundson met at the Ellsworth estate here and planned the Polar flight. Ellsworth agreed to back it with $100,000 for his son's sake and then went to Florence, Italy, to await the outcome of the expedition.

When no word came from the north after a week of waiting the old man lay down and died, heartbroken at what he believed to be the loss of Lincoln, his greatest treasure. A few days later Lincoln came back as a hero of the flight but it was too late.

Only a few distant relatives stood beside Ellsworth's grave today. The town which rebuked him years ago by rejecting his offer of hundreds of thousands of dollars to make Hudson the ideal American small town, with uniform red-roofed homes, paved streets and playgrounds, was not invited to his funeral.

TENT SHOW IS MAKING GOOD IN CIRCLEVILLE

Beyond a question of a doubt, Billroy's Comedians, the popular repertoire company playing here this week under canvas on Mason's Field, is the best popular priced attraction that has ever played our fair city. Opening here last Monday night to a fair sized crowd, their business has jumped by leaps and bounds until now they are playing to capacity and they justly deserve this kind of business, as the show is clean in every respect, entertaining and the greatest show for the money that this writer has ever witnessed. Roy and Ricca Hughes, "The Young, Old Couple," are proving quite a hit here and the ladies are fairly "eating" Mrs. Hughes up. Mr. Wehle, manager of the company informs us that tonight they are presenting "The Boss of Bar Z," which is a western comedy drama of the better class type and one that is sure to please. "Over the Ridge" last night proved another big success.

SOUGHT TO AVERT WAR ON ADVICE OF REAR ADMIRAL

Claims Oriental Invasion Was Imminent and Safety of Fleet Depended on Good Petroleum Reserve — Says Attorney General Daugherty Approved Transfer of Authority to Fall.

An assertion that the Washington limitation of arms conference in 1921 was called to prevent hostilities in the Pacific which had badly frightened naval officers was made today in an interview with E. L. Doheny, wealthy oil man, published in and copyrighted by the New York Times.

The interview was presented as Doheny's story of the events leading up to the Elk Hills California naval oil reserve. The leasing resulted in a senatorial investigation, Doheny's indictment with former Secretary Albert B. Fall for alleged criminal conspiracy and litigation under which the lease has been declared invalid.

Doheny was quoted by the Times as saying the work done under the lease was surrounded with secrecy to prevent foreign delegations to the conference learning that even at the moment the United States was engaged in warlike proportions.

The Times states that on advice of counsel, Doheny refrained from discussing the $100,000 loan to Fall which figured so prominently in the oil investigations or the letter signed by Fall saying he received the money from E. B. McLean of Washington. The Times said, however, it learned on good authority that Doheny understands the letter was signed under pressure from a Republican politician.

Doheny is quoted as setting forth five main points which led to his leasing of the Elk Hills reserves and which have bearing on subsequent happenings.

These are:

That Admiral John K. Robison, chief of the naval engineers' bureau, convinced him that "a great war in the Pacific threatened in 1921."

That the plans for leasing the navy oil reserves originated "in the brains of high officers of the navy who, as a result of confidential reports submitted by Admiral Albert Gleaves commanding in 1921 the American naval forces in Asiatic waters, were convinced that a great war in the Pacific threatened."

That Secretary of the Navy Edwin Denby, and not Secretary of the Interior Fall suggested the transfer of authority over the navy oil reserves from the navy to the interior department and that the transfer was discussed at a full cabinet meeting, at which Calvin Coolidge, then vice president, was among those in attendance.

That Doheny himself acted only after Admiral Robison told him that an invasion of the Pacific coast of the United States was probable unless oil storage facilities at Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, were constructed without delay.

That the leases and the carrying out of the program covered by the leases was surrounded in great secrecy because the Arms Limitation conference was in progress at Washington and it was vital that the powers represented there should not learn that while the United States was working for peace it was preparing for war.

That "certain independent telegrams" which would "go a long way towards clearing up the situation" are missing from the files of the interior department.

Columbus, July 1.—The state emergency board today appropriated $4,000 for a life saving boat and equipment for Indian Lake, near Bellefontaine.

PIKE COUNTY IN CENTER OF STAGE AGAIN

Federal Grand Jury May be Called to Consider Election Funds.

Waverly, O., July 2 (UP).—The lid is about to be blown off another election fraud scandal in Pike county.

Four federal inspectors just completed a thorough investigation in the county and are now preparing their reports for submission to Haveth E. Mau, United States district attorney. The fraud charges, most of them brought by Republicans against their Democratic opponents, involve in the main alleged vote buying.

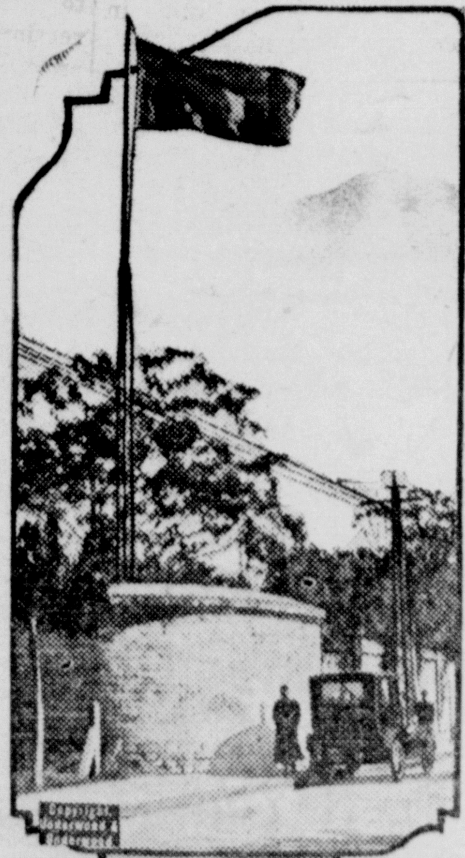

The investigation by federal agents included the elections of 1922 and 1924.

A federal grand jury may be called to consider the reports of the inspectors.

Died at Home in Ashville—
Funeral Services to be

Jacob Sylvanus Smith, aged 77 years, one of Ashville's earliest settlers, suddenly expired at the home of his son, Stanley L. Smith in Ashville at 2 o'clock, Wednesday morning, July 1, of a hemorrhage of the lungs.

Deceased had been in declining health for several years, due to heart and lung trouble complicated with rheumatism, though at most times he was able to be about by use of crutches and was about town on Monday but after a slight hemorrhage Tuesday morning he had remained in the home.

The attack Wednesday morning came when asleep and he was barely able to make his condition known and expired before the physician arrived. He is survived by two daughters, Mrs. J. M. Hartman and Mrs. H. R. Wooten, both of Columbus, and son, Stanley L. Smith, of Ashville.

HOME COMING AT ROBTOWN DELIGHTFUL

Main Address Was Made by Boyd Rife, a Student
at Otterbein.

The Robtown United Brethren church Homecoming on Sunday, June 28th, with its basket dinner accomplished the desire for a social day by those who promoted the occasion.

The attendance of members, former members and friends from the vicinity and a distance was gratifying and resulted in a real Homecoming of friends as well as members of the church.

The picnic basket dinner in the Big Old Elm in the church yard provided nourishment and a social season for several hours following the morning program which made all feel that it was well to be mingled with those assembled.

The main address of the afternoon was delivered by student Boyd Rife, of Otterbein university at Westerville. Mr. Rife is a product of Walnut township, son of Marcus J. Rife, of Ashville, and his leading place on the afternoon program added a local interest to all present. Mr. Rife acquitted himself well and his address was well received.

Mr. Henry Canter and Rev. D. S. Mills, both of Ashville, were heard in interesting but short addresses. Much more of commendation could be added in justice to the success of the day of homecoming.

Rev. Gibson, the local pastor, was in charge of the program and lent his enthusiasm to its success.

FLOWERS FOR THE LIVING

Most Americans take their hats off to the man who by his own efforts rises from the ranks and takes his place in the spotlight. Cheering the lowly private who makes the grade of Captain is a part of the true spirit of this land of opportunity. There have been a million such examples in America since Washington's day. We refer to Harold B. Stephens, saxophonist in the Long Beach Municipal Band. "Steve" as he is affectionately known to thousands of people in Southern California, has been engaged as soloist with Sousa's band. He is an example of rising from the ranks, worth emulating by all young musicians and we predict for him a glorious success.—Los Angeles (Calif.) Overature.

DOG STARDOM "GUARDSMAN" IS IN MOVIES

Dayton, O., July 1, (UP).—"Guardsman," Kenneth Estabrook's German police dog, soon will challenge the claims of "Strongheart" and "Balto" to the throne of dog stardom in the movies.

"Guardsman" in going into the movies signed to a liberal contract won thru merit alone. His record includes capturing a runaway convict near an Alabama prison camp and saving several persons, including his master, from drowning.

Otherwise, "Guardsman" is a regular canine—takes great delight in ruining flower beds and hates cats.

BOOTLEGGERS SENTENCED TO SERVE TIME

Michael De Angelo gets Three Years and Twelve-thousand Dollars Fine.

Michael De Angelo, Columbus commission merchant, who was recently indicted with eight other men on five counts, charged with conspiracy to violate the federal prohibition laws, was sentenced to serve three years and a day in the federal prison at Leavenworth, Kas., and was fined a total of $12,000, by United States Judge Benson W. Hough.

The men jointly indicted and convicted with De Angelo, and their sentences, are: Tony Consentino, two years; Joe Albanese, two years; John Calusi, two years; James Broski, 18 months; Charles Lombardo, 11 months; John Postorio, eight months; Tony Dato, eight months; Joe Ross, eight months.

At the opening of the session, District Attorney Haveth Mau stated that the government had no further remarks to make on the case. Attorneys for the defendants, made pleas for leniency. When asked whether he had anything to say before sentence was imposed, De Angelo stated that he had received fair treatment at the hands of the court, but that he had been double-crossed during the trial by federal officers prosecuting the case. He threw himself on the mercy of the court.

"This is just the beginning of a drive that we are making to clean up Columbus and vicinity of bootleggers," declared District Attorney Mau. "The government has evidence that other bootlegging 'rings' are in operation here, and we mean to put them out of business."

Thelma De Angelo, recently indicted on two counts for the illegal purchase of narcotics, was sentenced to 20 months in the House of Correction, Milwaukee, Wis. She had entered a plea of not guilty, but changed her plea.

Before Mrs. De Angelo was sentenced, Dana Reynolds, attorney for the defense, made a statement in her behalf, urging the judge to send her to an institution where she could be cured of the drug habit.

GOVERNMENT RECOVERED MUCH MONEY

Deputy collectors of internal revenue throughout the country completed 326 investigations in May, the internal revenue commission disclosed today, and the government recovered $4,345,273 as a result of their work.

They reported finding 28,236 firms and individuals who never had filed returns, although they were alleged to owe taxes.

A System of Farming That Brings Health and Prosperity

Every farm, regardless of the method of farming practiced or of the crops raised, should have at least a few good milch cows to provide

- (1) Enough milk, cream and butter for home use;
- (2) Enough skim-milk to raise some calves, pigs and chickens;
- (3) Enough cream or butter to sell to pay, in part or entirely, current living expenses.

This plan has been a "life-saver" for thousands of farmers, especially during the hard times of the past two years. It insures a living, at least, and often other income besides.

Such a plan pays best with a De Laval Cream Separator. It soon pays for itself—and skims cleaner, lasts longer and is easier to operate and clean than any other.

KEEP RIGID WATCH FOR AUTO THIEVES

Auto owner, did you know that 10,064 automobiles were reported stolen in 1924? This report is authentic, and shows that a more rigid watch should be made for the thieves. One method of the crooks is to carry their own battery, in case your switch is locked.

WEAR CAUSED BY SEVERE BRAKING

Tests Show Tires, Wheels, Spokes, Gears and Joints Are Affected.

Tires, wheels, spokes, differential gears and universal joints; these are the parts of an automobile which suffer most from sudden and severe brake applications, according to tests just completed.

These tests revealed why it is possible for a car to skid on a perfectly dry pavement. It was found that locked wheels slide along asphalt on a film of soft rubber, melted from the tread of the tire by frictional heat. In such cases, it was found, the car will travel farther before stopping than when the brakes are so adjusted and applied by the operator that they cannot lock the wheels.

Inspect Brakes Often. In the interest of greater safety, car owners should see to it that their brakes are more frequently inspected; certainly no less than once a month, or, better, every 500 miles. A simple road test, moreover, can be made by determining within what distance a car can be stopped at various speeds. When this has been determined, with any particular car, a liberal margin of safety should be added for actual conditions of service.

It should be remembered that the ability to stop a car is greatly influenced by the condition of the road surface. When roads are very wet, as in heavy rainstorms, there is less tendency for a car to skid than when the roads are partially dried or in what is known as a "greasy state." Should a car start to skid when applying the brakes, it is usually due to the wheels locking.

Stop Skidding. A dangerous skidding can usually be quickly stopped if a driver has presence of mind to release the brakes and apply them a second time with less force. This gives the wheels a chance to again grip the road. If the road is very slippery, as on an icy road with light snow on the surface, best results are obtained by slowing the car carefully with the engine and helping with the brake. Lightly loaded cars, as with the driver only, are more difficult to stop than loaded ones.

With these points in mind a driver can quickly learn the "tricks," but, above all, do not have too much confidence in your ability, as "it is better to be safe than sorry."

Care for Spring Clips Is of Much Importance

A point not always observed by the new car owner is that it is necessary to tighten the clips which hold the springs to their seats from time to time. Though the clips are tightened firmly when a new car leaves the factory the continual working up and down of the spring leaves will cause them to set gradually, thereby somewhat loosening the spring clips. These clips should be drawn up perfectly tight every once in awhile.

It is a common error to suppose that when a spring breaks upon a car plunging into a deep hole, the breakage is caused by the shock of the weight of the car coming down on the wheels. As a matter of fact, when a spring gives way under these circumstances, the breakage is usually caused not on the downward movement of the spring, but on the rebound. When the load plunges down, the load is borne by all leaves simultaneously, whereas the force of the rebound is taken by the leaves individually, one after the other, and for that reason must become more emphasized when the spring clips are loosened. Spring breakage occurs more often with loose clips than with properly tightened ones.

After the car has been run for a while and the springs have assumed their permanent set, the spring clips will need tightening only at very long intervals.

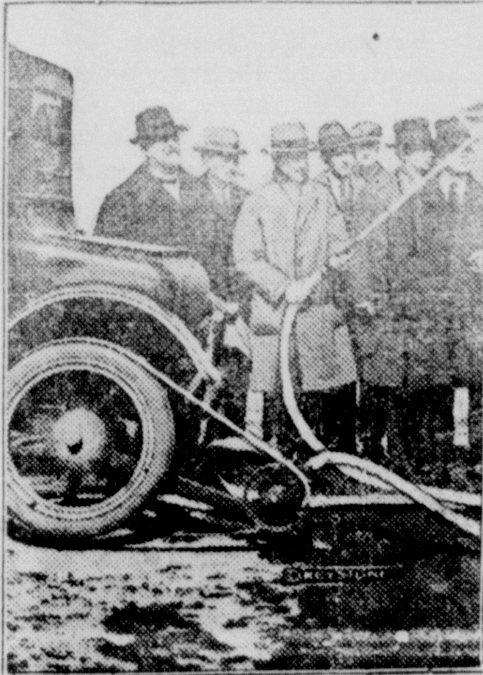

Watch Universal Joints

Universal joints, due to their location under the floor of the car, are usually neglected and the owner seldom gives them any attention until they begin to give trouble. These units of the car should not be overlooked. If the joints are of fabric type, see that every bolt is tight, and cotter pins are in place and that the fabric is not worn at any point. If mechanical joints are used, lubricate them thoroughly, and if there is any extra "play" in the joint, drive it to a service station immediately.

PUMP FOR FIRE USE ATTACHED TO WHEEL

The Outfit Is Practical for Draining Wet Lands and Other Uses.

A new pump has been invented for fire use, and distributed by a New Jersey factory, that is an innovation. The pump is connected by belt drive to the rear tire of your auto to the pulley on the pump. The outfit is practical for

Be Your Own Fire Fighter.

Fire protection, but also can be used for draining wet land, flooded cellars, pile driving, cleaning out stuffed up water lines, etc. It has a lifting capacity of 24 feet through the 1 1/2 inch suction hose.

Difficult to Estimate Correct Speed of Cars

From the results of experiments conducted by the psychological department of an Iowa university it appears that the average person is prone to overestimate the speed of a small, noisy motor car and underestimate that of a large, smooth-running one, says Popular Mechanics Magazine.

About 100 students were recently assembled at a point past which machines of different sizes and conditions were driven at known speeds. As a vehicle passed, each person recorded on paper his personal estimate of its mileage per hour.

Twenty-three trips were made with the cars, and from a study of the subsequent tabulations it was found that when a driver continually sounded his horn in passing the students considered the speed to be about five miles an hour greater than it really was. The discrepancy was double this when the rate of a rattling machine was considered.

Of two cars traveling at equal pace, the smaller was invariably estimated to travel faster than the other.

It is rather interesting, too, that young men and women who had never driven a car, made, on the whole, as nearly accurate estimates as did those of greater experience.

Close guesses of actual speeds were made when cars jaunted along at ten or twelve miles an hour, but when raced at 50 or 60 miles the guesses were extremely wild.

Made Many Wealthy, and Died in Poverty

It was in 1843 that Charles Goodyear, Yankee inventor, accidentally discovered the secret of vulcanization. The accident consisted of dropping a mixture of rubber and sulphur on a hot stove in his home. Today, says the India Rubber Review, vulcanized rubber literally holds up the stockings and trousers of the world. More than 15,000,000 motorists ride on it. More than 50,000,000 persons walk on it daily. Infants cut their teeth on it and old age uses it for false teeth. Balloons and dirigibles of rubber float aloft, while submarines plow beneath the ocean surfaces propelled by electricity stored in rubber cells. Yet Charles Goodyear was pauperized by expensive lawsuits instituted to protect his 60 different patents which were awarded him after years of struggle, and he was deprived of the fruits of his discovery through a technical irregularity in the registration in France and England of his patents. He spent his last days in humble circumstances.

The time is passed when the measure of the value of a memorial is quantity. I hope the time has come when that measure is quality. I care not whether the material be marble or granite, its future will be measured by the character of the design. It is quality that has preserved for us the finest examples in painting and sculpture. It is quality that will stamp our imprint upon cemeteries of the future. Simplicity, correct lines and proportions and proper ornamentation are the real fundamentals. A design that is right, material that is lasting, and perfect workmanship, spells success for the future of this industry and the beautification of the cemetery. Will you let me help you select the memorial for your lot. Call at show room. NO AGENTS.

THE OLD-TIME WORLD.

When it's summer in the country and the birds are singing free;
When the meadows burn with blossoms and the fruit is on the tree;
When the mocking birds are singing and the bumblebees are gay,
There is something that makes life different in the simple old-time way:
In the old-time way of boyhood, when the branch ran sweet and cool
And the sunfish and the mullets darted round and round the pool.
When the sweet magnolia's blooming and the paw-paws, fat and sleek,
Begin to burn and mellow round the old bend in the creek;
When the fox grapes smell like Eden, and the willows swing so low,
There is something keeps on calling to you heart to up and go;
In the old-time world of beauty there's a charm that will not die,
When the Bob White haunts the coverts and the cloud ships sail the sky.

It's a new day and new methods in this life, we live, I know,
And the moving generations echo that the old things go;
But when summer haunts the pasture and the little hills are green,
There's a spirit of all living gives the land a different sheen:
That old-time sheen of beauty that's so simple and so true
In the dreams that come to my heart and the dreams that come to you.

CANCER CAN BE
FORESTALLEDDeadly Disease is Caused by Poisons Created in Body
by Food Eaten.

(From Dearborn Independent.)

"Cancer is the great human menace. It is increasing by leaps and bounds. If anything, it is increasing more rapidly in the United States than it is in the British Isles. Of those now living in the British Isles, 5,000,000 are doomed to die of cancer if they do nothing to prevent it. In the United States the doomed number is 10,000,000 and might easily rise to 15,000,000 or 20,000,000."

This remarkable statement is made by Sir W. Arbuthnot Lane, Bart., one of the world's most eminent surgeons and dietitians, in an article appearing in the June 20 issue of The Dearborn Independent.

According to Sir Arbuthnot, cancer is not caused by the bacillus that scientists have so long sought and not yet found, but rather by poisons created in the body by the food that is eaten. It is a filth disease, and its prevention is accomplished by keeping the digestive tract thoroughly drained of its accumulations.

Continuing the Doctor says: "What we should do then, if we would avoid cancer, is to eat whole-wheat bread and raw fruits, and vegetables, shunning all meat first that we may be better nourished, second that we may more easily eliminate waste products and thus adequately drain the house in which our cells live. Whoever foregoes white bread will perform a great service for himself. It is deadly."

It is a difficult task to change the food habits of a nation or to induce the people to take sufficient exercise each day. Sir Arbuthnot says, however, that "whoever will correct his diet to a reasonable extent, take reasonable exercise and keep his digestive tract absolutely clean, need have no fear of cancer."

LORAIN PORT OF MISSING
AUTOMOBILESMeter Filled Quarry Gave
Evidence of a Woman
Murder Mystery.

Lorain, July 1.—(UP).—The "port of missing automobiles," a water filled quarry near here, today gave up evidence of a murder mystery.

A woman's garments stained with blood were removed from an automobile which divers found submerged in the pit. Similar garments were discovered in a clump of bushes near the quarry.

The possibility of finding stolen automobiles and perhaps the body of a woman murder victim prompted authorities to prepare a request to the county commissioners for a professional diver to explore the "port."

Useful to Pie Eaters

The piece of pie is recognized as the appropriate finish of an American luncheon, but for the fellow who carries his noonday meal to his job, the pie feature has been impossible to a great extent because of the inconvenience of transportation. Packed up in the usual lunch receptacle, the pie is always liable to be crushed and its juicy contents squirted out all over the other viands; but there has recently made its appearance a carrier for a piece of pie. It is a wedge-shaped receptacle shaped exactly like a piece of pie. It is made of aluminum so that there is almost no weight to it. The cut of pie is placed in it and the lid pushed down and there you are! safe and sound.

JAY WALKER
BEING MADE
RESPONSIBLE

Cities Will Insist That Pedestrians Must Come Under Traffic Regulations.

Some part of the responsibility for traffic accidents and loss of life must rest on the shoulders of the jay walker. That individual is in evidence in all cities where efforts are being made to lessen highway hazards. He pays no attention to lights, officers or regulations, insists on walking across the street at any point he may select, no matter in what direction traffic may be traveling. To an observer he appears to be hunting trouble.

Ultimately cities will insist that pedestrians as well as vehicles come under traffic regulations. In most places practically all attention of officers is given to wheel traffic, the pedestrian must work out his own problem. That custom is wrong. It helps to stimulate jay walking but does not justify it. The pedestrian should have the right of safe journey across the street at the regular places for crossing, have that in turn with vehicles, and should be expected to observe the traffic regulations exactly as drivers are expected to.

Officials at Williamsport, Pa., are trying to eliminate the jay walker, educate and instruct him and in that way decrease hazards. Each time a jay walker goes across the street in violation of traffic or at the wrong place, that individual is handed a card by a traffic officer. The message is that he has violated safety regulations and helped make the streets dangerous, to himself and others. A request is made by the police that regulations be observed. If not, the plan is to take the jay walkers into court for instruction and penalty, if they decline to learn wisdom and help promote safety.—O. S. Journal.

"Coming Through" is an adaptation by Paul Schofield, of Jack Bethea's novel, "Bed Rock," directed by Edward Sutherland.

Here's your favorite screen star in a picture that has action, thrills, love interest and humor in goodly proportions.

The story opens in the Pittsburgh offices of a large steel concern. Tom is employed in the capacity of chief clerk. His aim in life, however, is to become Superintendent of Mines and he bends every effort to prove that the position is none too big for him to handle. But he is side-tracked right and left to make way for some friend of so-and-so's.

After this has happened a couple of times, Tom decides to play their own game. He elopes with the president's daughter—rather a mean trick to put over on the poor girl, to be sure, but then love comes afterward to straighten things out.

Tom is shipped off to Colton by the irate father. Now there are many rough-and-ready mining camps in the company's holdings, but none quite as rough as Colton. Tom is given an unheard schedule of production to keep up and his father-in-law fixes things with the mine foreman so that Blackford might not "come through"—a case, as Rand thinks, of returning evil for evil.

But Tom does "come through." Try and "frame him" would they?—and he does—in the finest Meighan picture to date.

Lila Lee, in pictures for the first time in more than a year, is featured in support of the star. Wallace Beery is the villainous mine foreman. John Milner plays Rand, the steel magnate.

Laurance Wheat, Frank Campeau, Gus Weinburg and Alice Knowland complete the cast.

Reichelderfer and daughters, Betty Jane and Junivene, of Laurelville; Mr. Elmer R. Karshner and son, Roy, of Stringtown; Mrs. Ruth Imler, of Amanda; Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Reichelderfer, of Whisler, and Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Friece, of Circleville, held a family reunion at "Raspberry Park" on the Three C's highway north of Westerville, Sunday, June 28. After partaking of a bounteous dinner the afternoon was spent in swimming, boating, fishing and other children's games and pleasant conversation, reminders of the days of long ago. Next year the reunion will be held at the Storage Dam.

Estimates Made for Sewers —Fines and Licenses Collected by the Mayor.

The city council met in regular session Wednesday evening, July 1, with President John C. Goeller, presiding, and the following members present: Landenberger, Leist, Marion, Shaner, Wolf and Baker.

Mr. Leist, as chairman, reported that the committee recommend that permission be granted the Enderlin Coal company to construct a switch across Mound street and on motion of Mr. Wolf, this report was accepted.

Mayor Fitzpatrick reported fines, licenses and fees collected during the month of June in the sum of $414.40, and on motion of Mr. Baker this report was received and placed on file.

City Engineer Sweetman submitted an estimate in the sum of $4,966.80 for the construction of a storm water sewer from the intersection of Ohio and Washington streets, thence in an easterly direction on Ohio street to Clinton street; thence in a northerly direction on Clinton street to its intersection with Half Avenue, a distance of 1,300 feet, and this was referred to the committee consisting of all members of council, with Mr. Baker as chairman.

City Engineer Sweetman submitted an estimate in the sum of $4,981.05 for the construction of an extension to the Huston street storm water sewer from the intersection of Huston and Pickaway streets; thence north on Pickaway street to Ohio street; thence east on Ohio street to the center of Washington street, a distance of 1,005 feet. On motion of Mr. Marion this report was referred to the committee consisting of all members of council. Mr. Baker was appointed chairman of this committee.

Mr. Shaner reported a meeting of all members of council for the purpose of providing a better method for taking care of the city sewerage, and this question was referred to the committee on department of public service.

Service Director Schneider reported that several sidewalks along Franklin street, are lower than the curbing, and suggested that council give this matter proper consideration, and this matter was referred to a committee consisting of all members of council, together with the director of public service.

Health Officer Schneider reported that he had submitted a sample of the city water taken from the fountain at the court house, and also from the north and south parts of the city, to the state board of health, and that he had received a report from said board of health that the water is entirely satisfactory.

The finance committee submitted to council a schedule showing the appropriations to be made for the ensuing six months as follows:

Genl. Government Fund... $ 3,093 00
Public Safety Fund 7,520.00
Public Health Fund 390 00
Public Service Fund 13,935 00
Public Library Fund 2,360 00
with the recommendation that the same be appropriated and on motion of Mr. Leist this report was received.

An ordinance making appropriations for the current expenses and other expenditures of the City of Circleville, Ohio, during the fiscal half year ending December 31, 1925, was introduced and passed under suspension of the rules.

A resolution to provide for submitting to the voters of the city at the regular election on the third day of November, a proposition to levy an additional tax for municipal purposes, at a rate not to exceed two mills on the dollar in addition to the maximum rate of taxation authorized under provisions of the general code of Ohio, and for a period not to exceed five years, was referred to the committee on law and claims, together with the city solicitor.

Mr. Baker offered a motion which was seconded that the director of public service be requested to pay the members of the estimating board and equalization board for their services rendered in connection with the improving of Franklin street and this was adopted.

Attorney C. A. Leist, representing Mr. John Myers, former chief of police, requested council to pass the necessary resolution authorizing the return to Mr. Myers the fees earned by him while chief of police in State cases. Under the direction of the bureau of public accounting at that time, these fees were paid into the city treasury and amounted to the sum of $428.45. That the attorney general of the state, has recently made a ruling that these fees so earned are the property of the chief of police, and not the city. This was referred to the committee on law and claims.

MISS DENBY
By JANE GORDON
(© 1925, Western Newspaper Union.)
JOEL was, considering his strange, isolated manner of living, a remarkable young man. From childhood he had known but the crude cottage, built by his father's hands, in the thick of the far wood. Perhaps if Joel's father had not died in the son's boyhood, Joel might have gone out into the world to learn its ways. He had, instead, remained to care for the invalid mother, who had withered away as a flower might wither, in the lone country to which love for her husband had brought her.
With his labor among the trees, with books sent for at his mother's direction, Joel came to know every tree and leaf and sprout, and with his idle fishing in the silvery streams and the happy home life with his frail little lady mother, he had become content.
It was after her passing that ambition called, and the question of the far-away, busy world cried for answer. Joel, half afraid of those populated places of which he knew so little, sent for more books—of choice literature—of general information.
The tall, little young man, with honest dark eyes and fearless bearing, could not know his own attraction; his shyness was to be expected—he met so few people. The woodland folk knew him—Joel was at home with them and with Lisbeth. Lisbeth had grown up in a cottage not far away—benefited by his mother's suggestions and advising. Joel supposed that some day he should marry Lisbeth.
Looking at the pictures in the magazines which came to him, he wondered if women might truly be so beautiful—he thought of them as the knights in the books he read might have thought.
Then to the far woodland came Eleanor Denby. She came with her father on his business trip. It was necessary that John Denby, noted engineer, should see this particular location. And as John Denby was busy driving far and wide, the independent Miss Denby was left to her own resources, in the only boarding place the settlement afforded. She kept to herself, taking long walks through the forest, carrying picnic lunches with her—and the companionship of magazines alone.
"Mighty haughty," Jim Brent, the landlady's husband, said, and in quick resentment the neglected settlement took up the name.
Joel was naturally curious about the haughty Miss Denby when he heard of her. And when he saw her—poor Joel stood so long in the path after she had passed that Miss Denby, glancing back, caught the look of awed admiration in his fine eyes and wondered about it, as she went on her way. "Unaccustomed to city young women," she said amusedly.
Joel would not have believed in love at first sight, which, nevertheless, he was experiencing.
And the girl of whom Joel dreamed learned soon the history of his isolated existence, past and present. Learned also of his mother's brother in New York city, who had offered to the young man a college education which he had refused, to stay on with his dying mother.
As days passed and the encounters in woodland paths became frequent, leaving Joel with wildly beating heart, he was troubled with a desire which would not be denied—to meet properly and know the lovely young woman, who must always be as far beyond his reach as a distant glory-star.
Aimlessly Joel's rod hung above the waters, untouched, his study books near by. Then, down the stream a white rose came floating—a white rose—and she had worn in her belt that day such a flower. He looked up to where the log bridge forded the stream; she stood there—the haughty Miss Denby—she was watching him.
With a sudden impulse Joel caught the flower, and in true knightly fashion pressed it to his lips. Then carefully he tucked it into the billfold in his blouse pocket. Painfully conscious, Joel returned to a pretence of his task. Eleanor Denby, known to familiar friends at home as 'Nell,' thereupon accomplished a strange manner of exercise. Calmly and with a smile of amusement, she twisted her small foot about and sat down upon it. Then in clear tones she called to the young man on the lower bank:
"Please, Mr. Joel Webster, will you come and help me? I have twisted my ankle."
A knight ever hastens to a lady in distress. No knight could have been more prompt in action than was Joel. She was very light to carry; her weight did not tire him, as they continued their journey to the boarding house in the wood. And she was not haughty now—just a wounded little creature, resting gratefully in his strong grasp.
That night Joel's dreams were confused memories concerning the blue of her eyes—the perfume of her hair. And when, some time later, Joel Webster became one of John Denby's chosen engineers, and, incidentally, John Denby's son-in-law, he looked one day tenderly and wonderingly into the blue eyes which still enthralled him.
"Nell," Joel said, "little Nell, I am asking myself again the question, how came you to love me there, out in my wilderness? Of course I had to love you. Every tale of romance I had read promised your coming."

Held Dog, Saved Children
John McLaughlin, after being bitten by a dog supposedly suffering from rabies, at Marlboro, N. Y., grappled with the animal, and getting a firm hold on it held on until aid came. He said he realized the dog had done as much damage as it could, after biting him once, and he risked further lacerations in order to protect some children near by from possible rabies infection.

The Canny Scot

A real liquid refreshment had been forbidden the aged Scotchman, who felt that his end was near. He called his wife to the bedside and asked her would she carry out certain wishes of his when he was dead. She promised to do so, and asked what they were. "Ah, weel," said the moribund, "I thocht it would be nice if ma freen's had a drink afore the funeral." His worthy spouse agreed that it would be. "An' efter they returned," Again she agreed. "I suppose," he added, with a sly grin, "as I winna come back I might get baith mine noo." —San Francisco Argonaut.

Cannibals Still Exist

Until the recent murder of the Canadian explorer, Charles Penrose, in New Guinea by cannibals, the fact that man-eating humans still existed was not generally realized. This tragedy revealed authentic modern records of the cannibalistic tribes in the out-reaches of civilization. In New Guinea they live in the extreme interior, where the country is thickly forested and the tribes are difficult to locate. No traveler has dared to go too far into this interior, although neighboring tribes have given out information on their less sociable neighbors.

IMPROVED U. S. INTERNATIONAL Sunday School 'Lesson'

(By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D.D., Dean of the Evening School, Moody Bible Institute of Chicago)
(© 1925, Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for July 5

THE BEGINNING OF FOREIGN MISSIONS

LESSON TEXT—Acts 13:1-12.
GOLDEN TEXT—And He said unto them, Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature.—Mark 16:15.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Two Men Become Foreign Missionaries.
JUNIOR TOPIC—How Foreign Missions Began.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—The Beginning of Foreign Missions.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Holy Spirit in Foreign Missions.

I. The Gifts of the Church at Antioch (v. 1).

Young as Antioch, the new religious center was, she had prophets and teachers. In Eph. 4:8-12 Paul declares that when Christ ascended He gave gifts to men for the purpose of perfecting the saints unto the work of the ministry. This shows that the church does not exist for itself, but for service to others. Christ, the head of the church, came not to be ministered to, but to minister and give His life a ransom for many (Matt. 20:28).

II. Barnabas and Saul Sent Forth (vv. 2-3).

These were the first foreign missionaries sent out. While the five ministers were praying and fasting, the Spirit of God commanded them to send forth Barnabas and Saul. The work of evangelizing the world was laid so heavily upon these men that they refrained from eating in order to seek the will of the Lord in prayer. This is the kind of fasting that meets God's approval. From the fact that they were directed to send forth those whom the Spirit called, we learn that the real call to Christ's service comes from the Spirit. The Spirit called and the church seconded the motion by sending those who were called by Him. The church should be constantly seeking the mind of the Spirit relative to the sending forth of laborers into the vineyard. The Spirit called and the church sent the very best men from the church at Antioch. These men seem to have been ready to go for they rendered instant obedience. This should be our attitude toward the Lord's work, holding ourselves in readiness for the immediate execution of His commission. Those who have received the Spirit's call are not taken by surprise when the church sets them forward to their specific work.

III. Preaching the Word of God in Cyprus (vv. 4-5).

We are not told as to why they first went to Cyprus, but we are left to infer that it was owing to the fact that it was the home of Barnabas. He was acquainted with the country and people, and could thus be assured of a respectable hearing among them. Besides it is most natural that those who have heard the good news to go with it first to their kindred and friends. Andrew first went to his brother, and the man out of whom the demons were cast was denied the pleasure of his request to follow Jesus. Christ commanded him to go home and tell what great things the Lord had done for him (Luke 8:39). As they went forth they carefully carried out their commission for they preached the Word of God, not current history, philosophy, ethics, etc. Those who are faithful to God will never preach anything but His Word. The great need today is Spirit-called, Spirit-filled men preaching God's Word. In fact Spirit-filled men will preach nothing else. The opposer of God and Christ can only be successfully met by this means.

IV. Withstood by Elymas, the Sorcerer (vv. 6-12).

Sergius Paulus, the deputy, invited Barnabas and Saul to tell him of the Word of God. Elymas maliciously sought to turn his mind from the faith. This is the first obstacle they encountered, but it was overcome through the power of the Spirit. This opposer is the same one who came to Adam in the garden of Eden, and Jesus in the wilderness. He is the enemy of God and man. He now sought to bar the gospel as it entered upon its career of the conversion of the heathen. Paul denounced him in the most scathing terms. He called him the child of the devil, denounced him as full of guile and villainy, pronouncing him the enemy of all righteousness, accusing him of perverting the right ways of the Lord. Surely a man is never more of a villain than when trying to turn a soul from the gospel.

Our Life

We are living now by justice, honor and mercy, by the moral mastery of ourselves and of our time; and this life while in time is not of time; it is life in God and for God; it is the life of freedom; it is free from anxiety, fear, doubt, despair, death; it is content with God and with its fate in God. —George A. Gordon.

KOSCIUSKO STATUE

This statue of Gen. Thaddeus Kosciusko, the Polish patriot who served the United States in the Revolutionary War, is located in Lafayette square, across Pennsylvania avenue from the White House.

Litigation Saved by Diversity of Opinion

When two men of high standing fall out it is usually over one of the most trivial things in life. It would not be fair, perhaps, to say that Senator Lodge and General Paine actually fell out, but they were neighbors at Nahant and General Paine wanted a right of way across Mr. Lodge's property. The question of right was rather involved, and Paine consulted a lawyer, who said, "You haven't a case."

Not satisfied, he consulted another, who gave him a similar opinion. There the matter rested for a few days, when the general received a letter from the senator saying, "As to the right of way, I have consulted two lawyers, both of whom tell me you can probably sustain your contention in court. I suggest, therefore, that we come together and arrange for the right of way as you desire."

Beavers Increasing Fast

Possession of a new resource that within a short span of years may be expected to develop into a means of positive profit for land owners in various parts of South Dakota is seen by H. S. Hedrick, state game warden, on colonies which have been practically immune from trappers under the state law for the past six years, the St. Paul Pioneer Press says. It is impossible to make even an approximation of the number of these fur-bearing animals, Mr. Hedrick says, but it is known that they have prospered to an unexpected degree and are beginning to invade many localities where they were never before seen.

Set for Rainy Day

Prince George, youngest surviving son of King George V, has prepared for a "rainy day," such as the ousting of the royal family. He has become a member of the famous Mercers' company, from which he can obtain practically indefinite relief in the event of "old age or misfortune." Funds for such purposes were set aside years ago by members of the guild.

"Flock of Beautiful Birds"

New York, paradoxical in this as in everything else, is at once the most hospitable of cities and one of the hardest places in the world to get to know people.

There is in the atmosphere a restlessness, a swirling vivacity, which makes the people of New York find pleasure in movement rather than in concentration. When the more stolid Britisher goes to one of these parties she is apt to feel like some one standing on the shore of a lake while a flock of beautiful birds wheel crying around her, writes Rebecca West in the New Republic.

The American women, who always look very sweet and graceful in motion, because of the slenderness of the wrists and ankles, dart up to one and deliver shrill, sharp, surprising comments, often flattering opinions of one's appearance, which are, if one is honest, much more delightful than embarrassing. If they think you have beautiful eyes, or that you dress well they say so, and they will dart away, while others dart up to take their place.

This goes on and on, hour after hour, and yet the women never get baggared with fatigue, just as the men who are with them never seem to want to stop dancing.

NEW PIPE LINE

The Logan Gas company has placed an order for 3,100 feet of three inch pipe. Manager George Foerst says it will be used for customers and residents on Pleasant street and Deqn-town. At present natural gas has to be forced to these centers and the new pipe line will take care of this territory without extra expense.

MILLIONAIRE HEARTBROKEN BY SON'S DEATH

"Jim" Ellsworth Buried
Where First Dream
Was Shattered.

Hudson, O., July 2, (UP).—"Jim" Ellsworth came home today to the town where his first great dream was dashed to pieces on the rocks of a rural community's determination to remain rural.

They brought "Jim" Ellsworth home in a long wooden box and buried him beneath the tall shrubbery beside the bodies of his two wives.
Ellsworth died in his villa near Florence, Italy, a month ago, releasing life gladly because he believed his son Lincoln, had died in the Arctic circle with Roald Amundson.

Last November the elder Ellsworth, a multi-millionaire, his son, Lincoln and Amundson met at the Ellsworth estate here and planned the Polar flight. Ellsworth agreed to back it with $100,000 for his son's sake and then went to Florence, Italy, to await the outcome of the expedition.

When no word came from the north after a week of waiting the old man lay down and died, heartbroken at what he believed to be the loss of Lincoln, his greatest treasure. A few days later Lincoln came back as a hero of the flight but it was too late.

Only a few distant relatives stood beside Ellsworth's grave today. The town which rebuked him years ago by rejecting his offer of hundreds of thousands of dollars to make Hudson the ideal American small town, with uniform red-roofed homes, paved streets and playgrounds, was not invited to his funeral.

TENT SHOW IS MAKING GOOD IN CIRCLEVILLE

Beyond a question of a doubt, Bill-roy's Comedians, the popular repertoire company playing here this week under canvas on Mason's Field, is the best popular priced attraction that has ever played our fair city. Opening here last Monday night to a fair sized crowd, their business has jumped by leaps and bounds until now they are playing to capacity and they justly deserve this kind of business, as the show is clean in every respect, entertaining and the greatest show for the money that this writer has ever witnessed. Roy and Ricca Hughes,
"The Young, Old Couple," are proving quite a hit here and the ladies are fairly "eating" Mrs. Hughes up.
Mr. Wehle, manager of the company informs us that tonight they are presented "The Boss of Bar Z," which is a western comedy drama of the better class type and one that is sure to please. "Over the Ridge" last night proved another big success.
